

Build the Wall.

Scale begins in your notebook.

Session 31 · Friday 12 June 2026 · Marketing Sweet

IN THIS TOOLKIT

- 01 The 3-year mindset
- 02 Hero vs system — the bottleneck rep
- 03 The wall — what it is, how to build it
- 04 Time + dedication — the 5:1 ratio
- 05 The toolbox · fill it now
- 06 Daily reference card

01 · TIME HORIZON

The 3-Year Mindset

Today's choices in service of a future that hasn't arrived.

TODAY

MONTH 6

YEAR 1

YEAR 3

1 call ahead

Wall is half-built

Wall plateaus · new hires self-serveYou step off the wheel · it keeps turning

THE SHIFT

A rep thinking 1 call ahead asks "how do I close this?" A rep thinking 3 years ahead asks "how make sure the next 20 reps don't have to figure this out from scratch?"

WHY THIS ISN'T OPTIMISM · IT'S A DISCIPLINE

Believing the future will be better isn't enough. The rep has to ACT in ways that only make sense if the future will be better — like building a wall that costs time today and pays nothing back until people arrive to use it.

02 · THE TRAP

Hero vs System

Why "I'll just answer it myself" costs you the year.

HERO REP

"I'll just answer the questions myself."

- ✗ Bottleneck for every new starter
- ✗ Output capped at own hours
- ✗ Same explanation 20 times
- ✗ Burns out by month 6
- ✗ Three years in: still doing onboarding

SYSTEM BUILDER

"Every question asked twice goes on the wall."

- ◆ Builds self-serve resource
- ◆ Output compounds across all new starters
- ◆ Same explanation written ONCE
- ◆ Reclaims 70-80% of interrupt traffic
- ◆ Three years in: managing scale

WORKED EXAMPLE · CUSTOMER SERVICE OVERHAUL

First three days: no new client deals, nothing visible. Built a system. After that, the system saves an estimated 10x of Corie's own output — because Corie is no longer the single point of failure.

"The system isn't the same as the work. The system multiplies the work."

03 · THE CORE BUILD

The Wall · How It Works

Capture every question that gets asked twice.

FAQ WALL · SALES ROOM

#01 Buyer says "I'm happy with my current SEO"

→ Branded vs non-branded check. See video 4.

#02 Receptionist says "send an email"

→ Use "perfect person" line. See video 7.

#03 Buyer asks for a discount

→ Use contingency frame, not discount. See video 11.

#04 Buyer with under-100 traffic

→ Industry standard pitch (500-1500). See video 3.

THE PROCESS · WEEKLY RITUAL

MON-FRI Every rep logs every question asked at their desk to a dedicated notepad. Written, not Slack.

FRIDAY Team meets 30 minutes. Notepads compared. Duplicates merged. Junk discarded.

FRIDAY Surviving questions go on the wall with a one-sentence answer + reference number.

ONGOING New hire walked along the wall day 1: "check the wall first; if not there, log it."

THE GOOD NEWS

The wall grows fast for ~3 months, then plateaus. There are only so many questions a rep can ask. After that, the wall mostly maintains itself.

04 · THE FORMULA

Time + Dedication

Dedication is 5x as predictive as time in role.

THE RATIO

1 YEAR DEDICATED = 5 YEARS COASTING

Dedication compresses time. Time without dedication doesn't compound — it accumulates.

WORKED EXAMPLE · THE PLANE STORY

Corie bought a new plane he couldn't land. Flew daily for 2 weeks. Did 50 circuits. Mastered the plane in 14 days that would take most pilots 2 years.

→ Same plane. Same skies. The variable was compression.

WHAT DEDICATION ACTUALLY IS

- ◆ Focusing the hours that ARE worked, not adding hours
- ◆ Refusing the easy escape from a hard task
- ◆ Engaging with feedback rather than deflecting it
- ◆ Treating this role as primary, not as a side-quest

05 · PERSONAL CAPTURE

The Toolbox

Experience without capture isn't accumulation. It's exhaustion.

YEAR 0 · EMPTY TOOLBOX

"I don't need tools — I'm just a cold caller."

Dust. Moths. Each call handled, then forgotten. Three years later: still empty, still cold-calling.

YEAR 3 · WITH DAILY CAPTURE

"Two questions every day, written down."

200+ entries. Personal sales bible. No senior rep can match it — they were too busy 3 years ago to write theirs down.

THE 5-MINUTE END-OF-DAY RITUAL

Q1. What worked today that I want to do again?

Q2. What didn't work that I want to avoid next time?

Write both down. The tools go in the toolbox.

THE COMPANION LOG · "THINGS NOBODY TOLD ME"

Every rep is in a brief, privileged window — still close enough to their starting confusion to remember exactly what was confusing. In 3 years, fluency will replace that memory.

Capture it now. In 6 months it becomes the onboarding curriculum. Irreplaceable.

REFERENCE

Daily Card · Keep By the Phone

The whole session on one page.

THE MINDSET

- ◆ Think 3 years ahead, not 1 call ahead.
- ◆ New hires are the plan, not a surprise. Subject + verb.
- ◆ Hard now, easy later. Build for the future, not the day.

THE BUILD

- ◆ Every question asked twice goes on the wall.
- ◆ Notepad on your desk. Log every question this week.
- ◆ Friday team meeting: merge, clean, post to wall.

THE FORMULA

- ◆ $\text{Dedication} \times \text{time}$. Dedication is $5\times$ the variable.
- ◆ End each day: "what worked / what didn't." Capture it.
- ◆ Keep the "things nobody told me" log running in parallel.

THE LIFE

- ◆ Get on a bigger hamster wheel — one you can step off briefly.
- ◆ Money isn't evil. Lack of money is what costs you presence.
- ◆ Bring two specific written questions to the next session.

DON'T BE THE BOTTLENECK · BE THE BUILDER · SCALE BEGINS IN YOUR NOTEBOOK