

Belief Creates Conviction.

You can't sell what you don't believe.

Session 46 · Marketing Sweet · Sales Training

IN THIS TOOLKIT

- 01 The real question underneath "why you?"
- 02 Script vs conviction · what buyers hear
- 03 Rapport is recognition, not likeability
- 04 The curiosity questions · don't defend
- 05 Confidence = competence in action
- 06 Daily reference card

01 · WHAT THEY'RE ACTUALLY ASKING

The Question Underneath

"Why should I choose Marketing Sweet?" — decoded.

WHAT THE PROSPECT SAYS OUT LOUD

"Why should I choose Marketing Sweet?"

Sounds like a request for features. Almost never is.

WHAT THEY'RE ACTUALLY ASKING

"Can I trust you?"

"Will you look after my business?"

"Are you different from everyone who's disappointed me?"

Answer the trust question and the feature list becomes optional. Answer the feature question and the trust question stays open.

MISSES THE QUESTION

"We've got great customer service, we've been around for years, we've got thousands of clients..."

Prospect trust: unchanged.

ANSWERS THE QUESTION

"Tell me what happened last time. What made you cautious about picking someone new?"

Prospect trust: opens.

02 · WHAT BUYERS HEAR

Script vs Conviction

A script gives you words. It doesn't give you belief.

SCRIPTED · WHAT IT SOUNDS LIKE

- ✗ Reciting words you've been told to say
- ✗ Feature list with no personal stake
- ✗ Same answer every rep gives
- ✗ Panics under a hard question
- ✗ Feels like performance, not conversation

CONVINCED · WHAT IT SOUNDS LIKE

- ◆ Speaking from something you've seen
- ◆ Reasons anchored in personal evidence
- ◆ Your version, not the corporate line
- ◆ Welcomes the hard question
- ◆ Feels like a person, not a pitch

THE ACTOR ANALOGY

Great actors don't memorise lines and hope. They become the character — that's why the performance feels real. The parallel: you're not pretending to believe in the business. You've done enough internal work that the belief is real.

CONVINCED ≠ CONVINCING

You don't sound convincing. You ARE convinced. Prospects hear the difference in the first 30 seconds.

03 · A COMMON MISUNDERSTANDING

Rapport Is Recognition

Not likeability. Not charm. Recognition.

WHAT RAPPORT ACTUALLY IS

Showing someone you understand what they're already thinking — before they say it out loud. That moment of "this person gets it" is what unlocks the rest of the conversation.

WHY THEY'RE SCEPTICAL — AND IT ISN'T YOU

When a prospect says they're sceptical, they're almost never sceptical because of you. They're sceptical because of what

- Someone overpromised.
- Someone underdelivered.
- Someone stopped answering the phone.
- Someone took the money and disappeared.

→ Name the pattern before they have to explain it. The connection forms instantly.

"Rapport is showing someone that you understand what they're already thinking."

SESSION 46 · RAPPORT ≠ LIKEABILITY

04 · INSTEAD OF DEFENDING

Be Curious, Not Defensive

Three questions that reset every difficult conversation.

Q1 "What happened with your last agency?"

Opens the story. Signals you want to hear the whole thing before you talk about us.

Q2 "What frustrated you most?"

Surfaces the emotional core. That's what you need to acknowledge before you propose anything.

Q3 "If you could change one thing about that experience, what would it be?"

Reframes toward the future. Tells you exactly what "different" needs to look like this time.

DEFENSIVE (WRONG INSTINCT)

"We would never do that — our process is completely different from what you're describing."

Signals fragility. Ends the conversation.

CURIIOUS (RIGHT INSTINCT)

"That sounds frustrating. Walk me through what actually happened — how did that start?"

Signals confidence. Opens the conversation.

05 · THE MECHANISM

Confidence = Competence in Action

Belief is built from evidence. The work is on you.

Investigation → Evidence → Belief → Confidence → Trust

None of it starts with a better script.

WHERE TO GO LOOKING

- ✓ Sit with Customer Service. See what a client actually experiences when something goes wrong.
- ✓ Sit in on onboarding. Understand the first 30 days from the client's side of the desk.
- ✓ Learn the website process end-to-end. Ask what happens after the sale.
- ✓ Read client reviews — including the negative ones. Belief built on selective evidence collapses.
- ✓ Ask questions. If something doesn't make sense, don't ignore it. Find the answer.

ENERGY TRANSFERS · POSITIVE OR NEGATIVE

If you're unsure, they become unsure. If you're confident, they feel more confident too. Prospects use your certainty as a signal for whether the underlying thing is worth trusting.

06 · REFERENCE CARD

Belief on a Card

Pin it. Read it before every discovery call.

SESSION 46 · DAILY CARD

Build belief. Not scripts.

THE REAL QUESTION

"Why should I choose Marketing Sweet?" is a trust question, not a feature question. Answer the trust question.

MY OWN REASON

The reason I actually believe in this business is _____. Fill the blank in with something specific.

RAPPORT

Recognition, not likeability. Name what they're already thinking before they have to say it.

CURIOSITY OVER DEFENCE

"What happened with your last agency?" / "What frustrated you most?" / "If you could change one thing?"

CONFIDENCE = COMPETENCE

Don't talk more. Know more. Investigate. Belief without evidence collapses under the first hard question.

CONVINCED, NOT CONVINCING

Don't perform. Do the internal work until the belief is real — and let the prospect hear the difference.

TODAY'S CHALLENGE

Don't memorise better scripts. Build stronger belief.
