

Explain Like They're Seven.

The Librarian Pitch · And the Two Levers

Session 34 · Tuesday 16 June 2026 · Marketing Sweet

IN THIS TOOLKIT

- 01 "Perfect — that's my job" disarm
- 02 The librarian pitch — verbatim
- 03 Two SEO levers — authority + relevancy
- 04 The low-hanging-fruit research offer
- 05 Power words + tonality
- 06 Daily reference card

01 · THE DISARM

"Perfect — That's My Job."

Three words that reset the conversation.

WHAT THE BUYER SAYS

"I don't understand any of this SEO stuff. I don't know how it works — I just don't want to mess with something I don't understand."

WHAT IT ACTUALLY MEANS

"I don't have a frame for evaluating you. I can't safely say yes or no until I do. Give me a way to make sense of this without losing face."

THE REP'S RESPONSE · VERBATIM

"Perfect — that's exactly my job."

"Let me give you the picture — you'll never need to think about it again."

THREE THINGS THE LINE DOES

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--|
| Removes the shame | of admitting confusion. The buyer can now relax. |
| Positions the rep as guide | not vendor. The dynamic flips. |
| Buys full attention | for the next 45 seconds — which is all you need. |

02 · THE STORY

The Librarian Pitch

45 seconds. Three objects. The whole frame.

THE STORY · USE VERBATIM

"Let me give you the picture. Every website on the internet is a book, and all those books sit in a library. The library is called Google — and Google is also the librarian. When someone types 'plumber near me,' the librarian has to go grab the right book off the shelf. The problem is, there are ten million books that could be the match — so she picks the ten she thinks are best. Those are the websites on page one. My job is to make sure your book is one of the ten she picks."

THREE OBJECTS THAT CARRY THE WHOLE CONVERSATION

BOOK	→ the buyer's website
LIBRARY	→ Google's index
LIBRARIAN	→ Google's algorithm picking which sites rank

WHY IT WORKS

The buyer holds three concrete objects in their head and uses them for the rest of the call. "Ranking" → "which ten books the librarian picked." "Competition" → "the other books on the same shelf." The buyer feels smart for understanding — not stupid for asking.

03 · THE MECHANICS

The Two SEO Levers

Authority + relevancy. Nothing more technical than this.

LEVER 01 · AUTHORITY

The JK Rowling Rule

If JK Rowling writes a book, the librarian is more likely to pick it — she trusts the author.

FOR WEBSITES

Backlinks from credible sites = JK Rowling endorsing your book. The librarian's confidence goes up.

THE LINE

"Backlinks are JK Rowling endorsing your book."

LEVER 02 · RELEVANCY

The Content Match

If your book is mostly about something else, the librarian won't pick it — it doesn't match the request.

FOR WEBSITES

Your site's content has to match what your ideal customer is actually searching for. Otherwise, no librarian pick.

THE LINE

"Your book has to be about what they're asking the librarian for."

DON'T GO DEEPER

Everything else in SEO fits under one of these two levers. Don't introduce technical sub-categories on the call. Authority + relevancy. That's it. The buyer has enough to evaluate you.

04 · THE BOOKING MOVE

Low-Hanging Fruit

Close the meeting, not the deal.

THE OFFER · USE VERBATIM

"My research takes me about half an hour. Then I'd like 5 to 10 minutes with you to show you what I found. Sound fair?"

THREE DELIBERATE CHOICES

- | | |
|-----------------------------|--|
| "Low-hanging fruit" | → tradies use this phrase. Sounds practical, not theoretical. |
| "30 minutes to look" | → rep doing the work upfront. Buyer risks nothing. |
| "5 or 10 minutes" | → small ask. Easy to grant. Same currency frame as Session 29. |

WHAT TO DO IN THE 30 MINUTES

- ◆ Identify the buyer's strongest service page (e.g. "emergency plumbing").
- ◆ Check ranking position for their best-value keyword pair (service + suburb).
- ◆ Find a page-two near-miss — something close to the top, easy to surface.
- ◆ Prepare ONE screenshot of the gap. Just one. Don't overwhelm.
- ◆ Walk into the meeting with a finding, not a pitch. Findings book deals.

05 · SHARPEN THE BLADE

Power Words + Tonality

Picks for the lock — and the lift that makes them land.

PICK 5–6 THAT FEEL TRUE COMING OUT OF YOUR MOUTH

STRENGTH	perfect · guaranteed · absolutely · fantastic · incredible · obsessed
INTELLIGENCE	sophisticated · methodical · state-of-the-art · opportunity · research
WARMTH	grateful · appreciate · resonate · intention · ongoing support · transparent

TONALITY · BASELINE + LIFT

Every rep has a vocal baseline. The job isn't to abandon it. It's to use the baseline as the floor — then LIFT one or two key words per sentence — then come back down. The lift is where the power words live. Everything else is the runway.

DRILL · Read 3 recent sentences flat. Read again, lifting the highest-value word. Practise 10 min.

FAILURE MODE 1THE FLATLINER

Every word at the same level. Sounds disengaged. Power words land as noise.

FAILURE MODE 2THE FAKER

Every word pushed to max enthusiasm. New flat line at the top. Sounds rehearsed.

REFERENCE

Daily Card · Keep By the Phone

The whole session on one page.

THE DISARM

- ◆ "I don't understand it." → "Perfect — that's my job."
- ◆ Removes the buyer's shame. Buys 45 seconds of attention.
- ◆ Practise it. Don't justify. Don't pitch. Just disarm.

THE STORY · THE LIBRARIAN

- ◆ Websites are books. Google is the library AND the librarian.
- ◆ Someone types a search → librarian picks the 10 best books.
- ◆ Your job: make sure their book is one of the 10.

THE TWO LEVERS

- ◆ Authority — backlinks = JK Rowling endorsing the book.
- ◆ Relevancy — content matches the search request.
- ◆ Don't go deeper than these two. The buyer doesn't need to.

THE BOOKING

- ◆ "Low-hanging fruit" + 30 min research + 5-10 min meeting.
- ◆ Walk in with ONE screenshot of the gap. Just one.
- ◆ Pick 5-6 power words that feel TRUE. Lift one word per sentence.

IF THEY CAN'T PICTURE IT · THEY CAN'T BUY IT